Dean Robert G. Lawson

New Law Dean Appointed

Following an extensive selection process involving a search committee appointed by U.K. President Otis A. Singletary and faculty interviews of three finalists, the Board of Trustees on May 4 confirmed the appointment of the College's eighth dean.

He is Robert G. Lawson, 44, a West Virginia native of Kentucky ancestry. He has been a member of the Kentucky faculty since 1966 and a full professor since 1973. He succeeds Thomas P. Lewis '54, whose resignation was announced in November, 1981.

Lawson, who assumed his decanal appointment July 1, is a 1960 graduate of Berea College and a member of the UK College of Law class of 1963. He is a past Editor-in-Chief of the Kentucky Law Journal and a member of Order of the Coif.

In his first year of practice, Dean Lawson was tax counsel for Appalachian Power Company, Roanoke, Virginia. From 1964 to 1966 he was associated with the Lexington firm of Eblen, Howard and Milner, the successor firm to which he was of counsel for many years following his entry into teaching.

Many changes are occurring within the Law school and every effort is being made to report on these changes. There are, however, a great many other developments, both within and without the Law school, that are of interest to alumni, friends, faculty and students. Readers are therefore encouraged to submit items of general interest, of either news or commentary value, for publication.

Why is this man laughing?

Why is this man, Tom Lewis (lower left) laughing? Could it be because on July 1 he hands over deaning responsibilities to the man seated to his right, Bob Lawson? That the laughter is being shared by L.L. Leatherman '53, '81-82 Law Alumni President, and Norman Harned '65 suggests that the more probable cause is yet another slight turn of the roasting spit by Julius Rather '60, standing, master of ceremonies for the Tom Lewis Tribute held May 12 at the Hyatt Regency, Lexington. Judge Bert T. Combs '37, Professor Richard T. Underwood, University Vice-President Emeritus Lewis B. Cochran and Charles Adams '52 participated in the program.

Elected to the Law Alumni Association Board at the business meeting were as follows: Charles S. Cassis '63, Louisville; Marvin L. Coan '73, Louisville; Jennifer B. Coffman '78, Lexington; William S. Cooper '70, Elizabethtown; Jesse C. Crenshaw '74, Lexington; William E. Gary, III '63, Owensboro; Michael W. Hawkins '72, Cincinnati; Laramie L. Leatherman '53, Louisville; Herbert D. Liebman '51, Frankfort; Carroll M. Redford, Jr. '59, Glasgow; William T. Robinson, III '71, Covington; Burl W. Spurlock '64, Prestonsburg; James G. Stephenson '67, Ashland; Judge Julia K. Tackett '71, Lexington; and Jude P. Zwick '60, Naperville.

Officers for the coming year are as follows: William E. Gary, III '63, President; James G. Stephenson '67, Vice-President; Carroll D. Stevens '76, Secretary, and Michael W. Hawkins '72, Treasurer.

A six-time winner of the Student Bar Association's Outstanding Teacher Award and a 1971 recipient of the University's Great Teacher Award, Lawson served as the College's acting dean 1971-73. He was named Law Alumni Professor in 1979. Also in that year he was nominated for both the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky (with two others) and the U.S. Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit (with four others).

His numerous contributions to the bar, the judiciary and the General Assembly include service as principal drafter of the Kentucky Penal Code and membership on the committee for revision of Kentucky's Criminal Rules. From 1981 until the time he assumed the deanship, he served as Executive Secretary of the Judicial Retirement and Removal Commission. During the period 1976-80 he was a member of the Judicial Nominating Commission for the Kentucky appellate courts. For these many public-spirited achievements, Dean Lawson was awarded the Law Alumni Association's 1981 Recognition of Merit Award for Distinguished Public Service.

The Kentucky Evidence Law Handbook, published by the Administrative Office of the Courts and Kentucky Instructions to Juries in Criminal Cases (with Palmore), published by W.H. Anderson & Co., are the works for which Lawson is best known by Kentucky practitioners. His complete list of publications includes more than 20 articles in scholarly legal journals.

Dean Lawson will continue to teach one course a semester in the areas of evidence, criminal law and criminal procedure.

Charles F. Satterwhite '73 is presently serving a second term as District Judge in the 15th Judicial District, a position to which he was first elected in 1977. He presides as Chief Judge of the District, which includes counties of Owen, Carroll and Grant.

Hugh Archer '76 is an attorney for Bluegrass Land & Nature Trust, a non-profit organization which is active in preservation and conservation matters. The Trust now holds some one and a half million acres of protected property.

James T. Ketron '76 has been promoted to Senior Attorney in Ashland Coal, Inc.'s Law Department, according to William C. Payne, Senior Vice President and General Counsel. Ketron joined Ashland Oil in July, 1976 as a Staff Attorney and transferred to Ashland Coal on May, 1977. He and his wife Debra have two children.

John W. Stewart '76 has been appointed Division Chief for the Plea Bargain Reduction Unit by Jefferson Commonwealth Attorney David F. Armstrong. This unit serves as the screening agent for cases which are waived from District Court to the Grand Jury. The Unit has been in existence since November, 1980.

Stewart has been with the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office since August, 1978, and was most recently assigned to the Career Criminal Bureau. Before joining the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office staff, he served as an Assistant Attorney General in the Criminal Appeals section of the Kentucky Attorney General's Office. Stewart is a 1973 graduate of Western Kentucky University. While in law school, he served as President of the University of Kentucky Chapter of the Black American Law Student Association.

Robert W. Griffith '77, who has been practicing with White & Case in New York City, has returned to Louisville and joined the firm of Stites, McElwain & Fowler. He was admitted to the Kentucky Bar in April, 1982.

Davis Circuit Executive For the Ninth Circuit

William E. Davis '73 was sworn in January 11, 1982, as Circuit Executive for the Ninth Circuit. Davis, 39, had been serving as Assistant Circuit Executive since July 1981.

After graduating in 1964 from Transylvania University with an A.B. in business administration, Davis began a seven-year career with the Peace Corps, starting as a volunteer in rural Chile. He then moved into that organization's training staff, and left in 1971 after serving as program officer and acting deputy director of the Peace Corps program in Chile.

Davis returned to Lexington in 1971 to complete work toward his J.D. at the University of Kentucky College of Law. While in law school, he was director of a Legal Aid Society program.

Since 1973 Davis has occupied various judicial administration posts, working from 1973 to 1975 in the Administrative Office of the California Courts, and from 1975 to 1979 as Kentucky's State Court Administrator.

From 1979 to 1981, Davis was personnel officer for the Baha'i World Center in Israel.

For his organizational and managerial accomplishments and his innovations in the Kentucky court system, Davis received numerous awards from Kentucky legal and judicial organizations. During that time, in addition, Kentucky's Pre-Trial Release Program was recognized by the Council of State Governments as one of the ten best new state government programs of the year.

Class of 1932: The lawyer after 50 years

By Paul Owens

When Edwin R. Denney graduated from the UK law school 50 years ago he was in debt and there were few prospects on the horizon for a new young lawyer.

There was no such thing in those days as student financial aid. The Judge, as he

He recalls the dean, Alvin E. Evans, and how the students discussed their problems with him, and he recalls that all the students were personally acquainted with President Frank McVey. The law school in those days was in Lafferty Hall.

Social life in the late 1920s and early

1945-46, when he went to the Kentucky General Assembly, where he was chosen as minority leader. "We had 37 Republicans in the House that term, a number never since equaled. We were a factor, too."

John Sherman Cooper was sent to the U.S. Senate and Governor Simeon Willis named Denney to the remainder of Cooper's term as judge of the 28th Circuit. "But when the term was up, I decided not to run." One influencing factor was the $5,000 a year he was paid and his expenses had to come from that. Also, 1946-47 weren't the best years for driving over the roads that existed in Rockcastle, Pulaski, Wayne and Clinton counties.

The following years were heady ones. For a term he was chairman of the state Republican Party. Then, with the election of Dwight Eisenhower as President, Judge Denney was named U.S. Attorney. He resigned to accept the Republican nomination for governor in 1955, "Which I promptly lost," although he describes his showing against A. B. Chandler as "pretty good for a Republican in Kentucky."

He and Elinor had moved to Lexington when he became district attorney and following the governor's race he set up a partnership with Charles Landrum in the old Security Trust building downtown. The partnership has since been dissolved. Landrum currently is president of the Kentucky Bar Association.

Today, Judge Denney's firm on Market Street is called Denney, Morgan and Rather, with John Morgan and Julius Rather, Reed Rhorer and Thomas L. Clark. Denney was admitted to practice before the U. S. Supreme Court in 1954.

"Yes, if I were a young man, I'd choose to go into law. . . . And to UK," where he was named to the Order of the Coif as a student.

And concentrate on tax law and court practice. As a member of the Kentucky Constitutional Review Commission shortly after World War II (named by Gov. Earle Clements), he wrote the article on taxes.

For the past two years, he has said, "I'm trying to retire." But the law office in downtown Lexington still has its siren call — except for the deep winter months when he and Elinor spend some time on Sanibel Island off west Florida where they have a winter home.

Edwin R. Denney

later came to be called, had waited tables at a restaurant over on High Street and he'd worked in the law library. Some students, Judge Denney recalls, sold their blood — direct to the patient; there was no central collection agency.

The man who was to serve his alma mater two decades later as president of the UK Alumni Association (1950-51) hadn't gone into law school without some money in his pocket. He'd gotten in two years at Cumberland College in Williamsburg, a junior college at the time, and had then spent four years teaching.

His last year at the blackboard was at a four-room school in Ohio county and "I was the most moral man in the state," he recalls, since he couldn't spend money for anything except his meals and a roof over his head — all else was saved for law school.

He'd turned down, for various reasons, a scholarship to the University of Michigan, which would have paid him $150 a month. Some of his reasons had to do with his attachment to his native Kentucky. He was born in Monticello (Wayne County).

"Words cannot describe the difference," says Judge Denney of UK today — 50 years later — and UK then — in 1932. He says, "Today's freshman class is larger than we had in the entire law school then."

1930s was non-existent to the serious law student. It was the Great American Depression. There was little social life to be found that didn't require money in the pocket. "Besides, we had to spend all our time in the books."

But unlike many of his fellow students, when he got his law degree he did have a place to go, a place to hang his shingle. C. C. Williams, a prominent and older attorney at Mt. Vernon, took him in as a partner. "One of the finest men I ever knew." And the older man, since he was leaving town for the day, promptly handed the younger man a case to try — that first day on the job. "Which I promptly lost," recalls Judge Denney.

Although Mt. Vernon was in the same judicial district as his native Monticello, "I'd never even been there."

The next decade was uneventful: the day-to-day routine of lawyering. There was his church, his town, and he got married — Elinor came to Kentucky from South Dakota to attend college at Berea, about 15 miles north of Mt. Vernon. Mutual friends introduced them.

The couple has two children — both married and both parents of two children of their own. Suzanne and husband Col. Harry St. George Carmichael live in Ft. Bragg, N. C. Joseph Edwin is in the farm supply business in Burnsville, N. C.

A first venture into politics was in

William F. Rigsby '80, formerly of Dinsmore, Shohl, Coates & Deupree, Cincinnati, has joined the Lexington firm of Bulleit, Kinkead, Irvin & Reinhardt.

Ken Wagner '80, formerly clerk to United States Bankruptcy Judge Merritt Deitz, has joined the Louisville firm of Handmaker, Weber & Myer.

J. Bradley Wilson '81, formerly a Kentucky Supreme Court clerk, will be clerking for Judge Scott Reed, United States District Court Judge for the Eastern District of Kentucky.

Ronda Paul '81, has been named Director of the Division of Securities of the Kentucky Department of Banking and Securities. She had been serving as a special assistant to state Insurance Commissioner Daniel Briscoe. Before enrolling in law school she was Assistant Professor of Business Administration at the University of Kentucky. She holds a Ph.D. from Purdue University.

Joseph "Josh" Pons, Jr. '82 recently was named a winner of the prestigious Eclipse Award for a three-part series on racing in Ohio, published in the Bloodhorse, a Lexington-based magazine.

Pons is the third generation of his family involved in thoroughbred breeding. He has recently syndicated a 4-year-old colt by Lyphard, and now manages that syndication from his family's Country Life Farm in Maryland, about 20 miles north of Baltimore.

Chris Hill '82 won second prize in the Nathan Burkan Copyright Competition, sponsored by the American Society of Composers, Artists, and Publishers. The award carries a $2,000 prize. His essay "Copyright Protection for Historical Research: A Defense of the Minority View," will be published by the Columbia University Press in the ASCAP Copyright Law Symposium Series. Hill won first place in the intraschool competition, winning a $500 prize, and his paper also was successfully submitted as his candidacy comment to the Kentucky Law Journal.

In Memoriam

Edward S. Dabney '20, one of Lexington's most prominent bankers and a driving force behind the city's post-World War II business boom.

Dabney's first affiliation after graduation from law school was with the Kentucky Joint Stock Land Bank. In 1929, he joined Security Trust Company, becoming its president and a director in 1947. He continued in that post until the bank merged in 1961 with First National to form First Security National Bank and Trust Company, the largest of Lexington's eight banks.

He was First Security's first board chairman, and retired from that post in 1973. Dabney was instrumental in forming the Lexington Industrial Foundation, which bought land and enticed such manufacturing firms as Square D, Dixie Cup, and Trane to Lexington.

He also served as a director of Ashland Oil and Refining Company, was vice-president and director of Limestone Gas Company of Maysville; and was a board member of the Cincinnati branch of the Federal Reserve Bank.

1982 College of Law Fund Report

Newly Appointed

William T. Robinson, III, '71, Covington, newly appointed National Chairman of the 1982 College of Law Fund. He is a member of the boards of the Kentucky Bar Association and the College of Law Alumni Association.

Chairman's Message

At the close of business for 1981, all leading College of Law Fund indicators were up! In fact, nearly every category for which we tabulate statistics showed a healthy increase. The total of donors was up (7%); the average gift size was up (9%, to $156.48); and, the total amount donated by alumni was up (to $67,020.25, an increase of almost 7% from 1980). Over the last two years, alumni and friends of the law school have given in excess of $175,000 for various needs, a record.

The Lafferty Society grew by several members, whose pledges for future gifts totaled an additional $113,500. We have now passed the $750,000 mark in Society gifts and pledges, and are rapidly closing in on $1,000,000.

Larry Leatherman, '81-82 Law Alumni Association president, deserves special recognition for his contributions of time and money towards our 1981 successes. His leadership helped uncork a great reservoir of giving generosity. Many others, notably the Class Agents, were instrumental in generating good results.

The accompanying materials detail the achievements and the achievers. I commend them to your reading and express to each and every person whose name is shown my personal thanks for their participation.

Picking up the torch as National Chairman for 1982 will be William T. Robinson, III '71, Covington, a proven leader. I know you will respond generously to him, his many volunteer teammates, and to our new Dean, Bob Lawson, as their appeals begin to reach you this fall.

Cordially,

Dean's Response

By the time this issue of the Review reaches you Professor Lawson will have succeeded me as Dean of the College of Law. I know that you applaud his selection and agree with my judgment that the College will be in most capable hands.

Those of you who attended our annual Alumni Banquet in May, where I was the target of a "roast," may be anxiously awaiting this issue of the Review, along with roaster Judge Bert Combs '37, to learn at last and from me what my "accomplishments" have been. I hope you will not be disappointed if instead I make only a brief and most general personal reference to my experience, and devote the remainder of this column to the contributions our alumni have made to the College.

I think everyone who approaches the end of a distinctive experience—service in the armed forces, life as a law or medical student, service as a law school dean—has an irresistible impulse to reflect on and re-evaluate the elements of the experience. For most people an experience that is entitled in retrospect (from a purely personal viewpoint) to an overall rating of "very good to excellent" will have been composed of many elements that at the time seemed to be challenging, stimulating, gratifying, etc. But even such an experience will surely have had some other elements that at the time seemed to range from the dull to the aggravating. I think that for most people those elements of an experience which were seen as pluses at the time generally continue to be seen as pluses in retrospect, though their magnitude may become diminished or enlarged. But this is not true of those elements of an experience which were seen as minuses when they occurred; these frequently become, in retrospect, the stuff of which nostalgia is made.

As I look back over the last six years I come to several conclusions. First, from a personal standpoint, the positive elements of the experience far outweigh any negative elements, and I can say this before I have completed the mental process of transforming any negative elements into challenges that were (or I will come to believe were) satisfactorily met. Second, the dean's job provides a unique perspective from which to view the structural parts that combine to make a good law school. Because of this different perspective, I come away from the job with different—and I think more valid—conceptions of (a) what constitutes excellent law teaching; (b) the kind of service, support, and environment law students and faculty members are entitled to expect; (c) the combinations of talent, effort and attitude that go into the making of faculty members who should be highly valued by the institution; (d) the value to the institution of good alumni relations (and the converse of this: both the emotional and practical importance alumni attach to their school's quality and public image); and (e) the true measure of a law school's quality.

A law school's alumni—their qualities as citizens and professionals—are of course the true measure of the school's value and contribution to society. But the process by which a school's quality thus measured is enhanced is circular in movement. We begin with the inherent qualities brought into the school by those inchoate alumni—each year's group of entering students. What happens to them during the three years of law school is obviously important and is a function most directly of the faculty's efforts. But the quality of the faculty and the resources available to both faculty and students are in part dependent on how much mature alumni are willing to put back into the school. And with greater alumni involvement in the life of a school in non-financial ways, what happens to those inchoate alumni during their three years can be directly affected by existing alumni.

The College of Law Fund has been nurtured to success and wide-scale acceptance by the efforts of many volunteers, assisting only three other chairmen besides Fred Nichols. Charles Adams '52 served ably as the second chairman of the Fund. Joe Day '72 added important momentum to the Fund during its third year. And Joe Bill Campbell '68 brought the Fund to a new level of maturity through his services as chairman during the last two years.

Judge Bert Combs was instrumental in the successful launching of our new Visiting Committee. As a charter member of the committee and its first co-chairman (with Rod Hills) Judge Combs demonstrated an intense interest in its work, and led in the drafting of its first Report, with assistance from Rod Hills and members Alan Vogeler '40 (present Chairman of the Committee) and James Park '58. Judge Combs personally presented this first Report to President Singletary, and I am confident that the Committee's work as presented by Judge Combs contributed to subsequent and much needed faculty salary improvements.

All members of the Visiting Committee and the Alumni Association Board of Directors are asked to give a very substantial amount of time to the College each year. But some are also asked—at their own expense—to travel long distances in order to attend meetings. For example, Dianne McKaig '54 came from Atlanta; Roger Leland '54 came from Northborough, Massachusetts; Roy Ray '28 came from Dallas, Texas; and Jude Zwick came from Chicago, to attend Visiting Committee or Alumni Board meetings. Yet it is possible that none of these have equalled the total distance travelled by some in-state alumni, such as Judge Edward Johnstone '49 (Law Alumni Board of Directors; Visiting Committee) and Charles English '60 (Law Alumni Board of Directors for four years) who have driven from distant points in the Commonwealth to attend so many meetings in Lexington. I could name scores of others who have patiently thus contributed their time in unusual quantities to the College.

I could fill several pages with the names of alumni who have been especially helpful to me and to the College during the past six years. Even if I tried to shorten the list to include only those who had shown an extra degree of enthusiasm or imagination, it would be so long as to dilute my purpose. I hope it will be adequate to recognize, as representatives of this group, William Gary '63, current President of the Law Alumni Association, James G. Stephenson '67, current Vice-President of the Association, and William Robinson '71, Chairman of the 1982-83 College of Law Fund.

As an outgoing dean it is most gratifying to realize that because of the magnitude of alumni efforts on behalf of the school any effort to single out individuals for special recognition can realistically be little more than a scratching of the surface. In retrospect I appreciate the fact that it is principally our alumni (including hundreds who were students during my deanship) who lead me to feel privileged to have been Dean, and to believe that from a personal standpoint the experience was wholly worthwhile.

recognized the financial contributions of alumni. It may be that no development during the time I am reporting on has been of more significance for the well-being of the College than the creation of the College of Law Fund, which in five years has produced one million dollars in combined cash contributions and pledges. But I have noted the significance of this development on many occasions. Now I want to recognize the school's other developing relationships with its alumni.

Almost everyone seems to agree that "good" alumni relations are critically important to a school for reasons going beyond financial support. I have tried to analyze why this is so, and though the analogy is hardly perfect I think of the athlete who achieves "star" status. We know that one without sufficient talent cannot wish himself to star status. But we also know that talent alone is not enough. Whatever his talents, one cannot be a star athlete without that special self-confidence that is equal to the task. As a collection of individuals an institution of course has no single source of talent or confidence. A school's alumni can be a source of both, and that is why I think good alumni relations are so important. By good alumni relations, I mean much more than the existence of merely cordial relationships. Good alumni relations reflect the existence of substantial numbers of alumni who believe in, i.e., have confidence in, the school and who act on that belief. The school's institutional performance must provide justification for alumni confidence, but in ways that may not be true for the athlete, alumni confidence and resulting action can stimulate institutional responses through faculty and students which will in turn provide an even higher level of justification for alumni confidence. Thus supportive alumni action not only enhances a school directly, but also indirectly by stimulating faculty and students who are engaged at the school on a daily basis.

With this background, I can say quite sincerely that alumni relations have provided one of the most satisfying aspects of my experience as Dean.

I discovered that there is an almost inexhaustible source of energy and goodwill among our alumni which can be tapped for the good of the school. I have always believed that most of you have warm feelings toward the College of Law; I know now that there are literally hundreds of you who are more than willing, if asked, to act on your feelings by participating in the continuing development of the College.

Fred Nichols '51 perhaps best illustrates the sort of alumni commitment toward the College that I now know exists in so many of you. Fred was President of the Law Alumni Association during my first year as Dean. He and his Board lent strong encouragement to the development of an annual giving program. Because of this, Fred became the National Chairman of the College of Law Fund during its first year in 1977. Later, he was a charter member of the Visiting Committee when it was established in 1979. During these years I do not remember Fred's ever missing a meeting, and he managed to attend the meeting of our Visiting Committee last Fall even though to do so he had to drive from Madisonville with a special lens designed for persons who have not fully recovered from cataract surgery.

The Law Alumni Association, which had been reactivated just before my arrival in 1976, reached a new pinnacle of activity during 1981-82. The organization was off to a good start by 1976, under the leadership first of Thomas Brabant '60, and then of Fred Nichols. Its growth and development have been steady under a succession of Presidents—Norma Adams '53, John McCann '68, Arloe Mayne '51, John Heyburn '76, and Laramie Leatherman '53. Each year's president has built upon the efforts of his or her predecessor. Two consequences are that the Association has become increasingly active and productive, and the demands of time and effort on each successive President and Board have grown profoundly. This has been particularly evident during the last two years, when Presidents John Heyburn and Laramie Leatherman so generously and enthusiastically contributed their time and imagination to the fashioning of the Association's role in the life of the College.

The Dean's Club Totals $40,154

The Dean's Club is composed of individuals whose gifts to the College of Law in an annual-giving year total $1,000 or more. Many Dean's Club members have committed themselves to sustained giving at this level in fulfillment of a Lafferty Fellows pledge. The leadership of these individuals is demonstrated in the impressive total of their 1981 Fund gifts: $40,154.

The Judge William T. Lafferty Society

1981-82 Report

Created in 1977 and open to all alumni and friends of the University of Kentucky, the Lafferty Society is the College of Law's leading gift recognition club. Cumulative gifts and pledges from Society members now approach the three-quarters of a million dollar mark.

The Society, named for the College of Law's first dean, is composed of University of Kentucky Fellows who designate at least one-half of their gift commitment to the College of Law. Fellows Program/Lafferty Society gifts may be designated for any current support, capital, or endowed purpose.

Society Fellows are encouraged to become active members of the College community. Special invitations to social and ceremonial events are regularly extended by the Dean; a furnished office, located on the second floor of the law building just off the library, will soon be available for members' use when in Lexington; special campus parking privileges make for convenient personal access to the law school facility.

Individuals may qualify for the University of Kentucky Fellows Program by making a present gift of $10,000 or more; or by indicating an intention to contribute $10,000 or more within a ten-year period in installments of $1,000 or more per annum; or by making a commitment to make a deferred gift of at least $25,000 in an appropriate manner (details upon request).

Sponsors Fund Critical to Campaign

Sponsors-level giving ($250-$499) is critical every year to the success of the campaign. Besides adding handsomely to the overall dollar totals, the generosity of these individuals is responsible in significant part for the high average alumni gift figure of $156.48.

Hundred Club Patrons Gift Range $100-$249

Recognized by the University in its report as Hundred Club members, Patrons are for the College of Law the underpinning of the entire College of Law Fund campaign. The numerous gifts in this range ($100-$249) are evidence of the generosity demonstrated by alumni generally throughout the 1981 campaign.

Law Day Activities Feature Senators, Justice Official

Kenneth W. Starr, counselor to United States Attorney General William French Smith, spoke Thursday, April 9 on Reagan Administration policies relating to racketeering and immigration, notably the detention of Haitian refugees at Federal Correctional Institutions such as the one near Lexington.

The month of activities ended on Friday, April 30 with visits by United States Senators Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina and Howell Heflin of Alabama. Hollings, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee and a frequent critic of Reagan economic policies, at a press conference the evening before criticized the President for "copping out" in his attempt to summon national will for an economic solution to the nation's problems. "The way you appeal to people for bi-partisan support is not to be partisan," Hollings said. "Reagan apparently never met Dale Carnegie."

Hollings expressed skepticism about Reagan's proposal for a constitutional amendment to balance the budget. He called the amendment a "speedometer—it will tell you how fast you are going but not how to control it."

Senator Heflin, Chairman of the Senate's Select Committee on Ethics, and instrumental in the Senate's actions in the Harris and Williams case, partially defended the FBI's efforts in its Abscam investigation. However, he criticized the bureau for spending only 30 minutes in deciding to "target Williams for investigation."

The senators' Law Day appearance was made possible by the Brown & Williamson Corporation, Louisville.

The Law Day 1982 theme was "A Generation of Progress." This year marked the 25th world-wide celebration of Law Day USA.

Faculty Activities

Rutheford B. Campbell, on leave 1980-82, and a partner in Stoll, Keenon & Park, Lexington, will return to the faculty to teach fulltime in academic year 1982-83. He has continued to teach during his leave, on an adjunct basis.

Taking leaves of absence during the coming term will be Professors Thomas P. Lewis (Spring '83), Martin McMahon, who will be a Visiting Professor at the University of Virginia, Eugene Gaetke, University of Indiana-Bloomington, and John Leathers, sabbatical leave (Spring '83). Returning from leaves of absence in addition to Professor Campbell are Robert Lawson, dean designate and Alvin Goldman. Both were on sabbaticals during the spring term.

Barbara Foster, class of 1978, who has been practicing with the Internal Revenue Service in Washington, will hold the position of Visiting Assistant Professor for the 1982-83 term, teaching in the tax area.

Professor Paul Oberst has announced his intention to retire from teaching effective June 30. Professor Oberst was honored in a special program sponsored by the Law Alumni Association in 1979.

Profesor Carolyn Bratt received an award as one of three outstanding women in the Lexington-Bluegrass area, sponsored by the American Association of University Women. The awards are given to women who have made contributions to the advancement of women and the overall betterment of society.

Before retiring as Dean, Tom Lewis was recognized by the Thoroughbred Chapter of the American Business Women's Association as 1982 Boss of the Year. He was nominated by his Administrative Assistants Barbara Drake and Martha Grange. Barbara was selected the American Business Women's Association Woman of the Year for the local chapter.

Several promotions approved by the Board of Trustees take effect July 1, 1982: Eugene Gaetke, Associate Professor with tenure; Martin McMahon, Associate Professor with tenure; William James, Pro-

Moot Court, Law Journal Selections Announced

Second year students Carolyn Boswell, Bill Kuster, Jim Litsey, Steve Porter, and Mark Hinkel, alternate, have been selected to represent the college in the National Moot Court Competition. Their first competitive event was the Tri-State Moot Court Competition, held April 3 at the University of Cincinnati.

The Kentucky Law Journal has announced Faculty approval of the following students to serve for academic year 1982-83: Editor-in-Chief, Peggy Frisbie; Holly Stone, Managing Editor; Shirley Wiegand, Executive Editor; Mike Risley and Bill Wetterer, Articles Editors; Joe Beavin, Comments Editor; Debra Dawahare, Notes Editor; Marty Rehm, Survey Editor.

In March, the Law Journal staff issued Volume 69, No. 4, which was dedicated to Justice Stanley Reed. Chief Justice Burger and Justices Brennan and Stewart published tributes to Justice Reed in the issue. Francis William O'Brien, Tower-Hester Professor of Political Science at Southwestern University, Georgetown, Texas, a Justice Reed biographer, wrote the foreword.

Bennett Boskey, a Washington, DC practitioner and author of Volumes 1 and 1A of West's Federal Forms, published a special comment on Justice Reed and his family of law clerks. Four other former Reed clerks, George Colvin Cochran, Professor of Law, University of Mississippi, George V. Mickum, III, Steptoe & Johnson, Washington, DC, Timothy B. Dyk, Wilmer & Pickering, Washington, DC, and Arthur Rosett, Professor of Law, UCLA, published substantive articles.

Law Classes Hear ITC General Counsel

Michael H. Stein, the General Counsel of the International Trade Commission, spoke to UK law classes in Administrative Law and Constitutional Law on April 22. In Professor John Rogers' Administrative Law class he described the inner workings of his agency, formerly the Tariff Commission. In a lively give-and-take with the students, he defended the proposition that additional procedural requirements do not generally result in fairer decisions.

Mr. Stein also spoke to Professor Rogers' first-year Constitutional Law class. Prior to going to the I.T.C., Mr. Stein represented federal agencies in the federal Court of Appeals for the U.S. Justice Department for seven years. He had previously taught Constitutional Law in the African country of Lesotho for two years. He gave UK students an inside view of how the U.S. Government arrived at its litigating position in a significant Supremacy Clause case already covered by the students in class. He also responded to numerous questions ranging from government litigation problems to advocacy techniques to the government's position on affirmative action.

Mr. Stein graduated from Swarthmore College and Columbia University School of Law. Following his appearance at the law school, he was a distinguished guest at a 2-day meeting of the Board of Advisors of UK's Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce. He spoke at the Patterson School meeting on April 17 on the fundamental bases for currently perceived weaknesses in the American steel, automobile, and semiconductor industries.

Graduation day 1982 saw 142 new UK lawyers take their degrees before the largest crowd of parents, friends and alumni ever gathered for such an occasion. Professor John R. Leathers, Dean Thomas P. Lewis, U.S. District Court Judge Scott Reed '44 and Kerry B. Harvey '82 addressed the assemblage, representing the faculty, the judiciary and the class, respectively.

Preliminary tallies show the class to have distributed itself over 16 states, with an overall placement rate as of school's end similar to that of previous classes. The comprehensive report of the employment experience of the class of 1982 will be published in November, 1982 and summarized in the Winter Edition of The Review.

Professor John R. Leathers speaks at Graduation, 1982.

Graduates queue up outside Memorial Hall for the May 8 commencement exercises.
